Damaged Jet Lands Safely

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — An Eastern Airlines DCS Jetliner with 48 passengers and a crew of six made a safe emergency landing at International Airport Wednesday when an instrument panel light indicated engine trouble. A check of the plane, bound from Philadelphia to San Juan, Puerto Rico, showed the trouble was in the electrical system and not the engines. The flight was cancelled.

Judge Urges Zoning Change

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Chief Justice John C. Bell of the Pennsylvania Supreme Court says legislation is needed to change procedures in granting exceptions to zoning ordinances. In a separate opinion to a case issued Tuesday, he said it was illogical for a zoning board or person opposing an exception to have to prove the change would adversely affect the community. He said the burden should be on those seeking the change to prove the exception is "not detrimental to public health, safety, morals or general welfare."

Pennsy Doubles Spending For '64

CHICAGO (AP) — Chairman Stuart T. Saunders said Wednesday the Pennsylvania Railroad will spend about $120-million for improvements this year—a program geared for good general business and strike-free operations.

He told a news conference the outlay will be the largest in several years and will double the amount spent last year.

Saunders said the plans are pegged to "the prospect for good business this year and anticipation of a prompt passage of President Johnson's tax program."

State Car Use By Professors Now Under Fire

HARRISBURG (AP) — Pennsylvania Senate and House appropriations committees ordered an immediate investigation into the use of state cars by college professors at 14 state colleges. "It's utterly ridiculous for a college professor to have a state car when his work is in the classroom," declared Rep. Blaine C. Hacker, R-Dauphin, chairman of the House Committee.

A spokesman for the Department of Institutions said 45 state cars have been assigned to state colleges "but they are under strict regulations."

Professors only use the cars when they are teaching in the field, he said.

Hacker maintained that he has knowledge of some professors driving as much as 1,500 miles a month. He also charged that about 11 cars assigned to West Chester State College are being used by professors.

Doctors Transplant Tissues

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Two doctors, one in Pittsburgh and the other in Boston, have developed a technique for transplanting glandular tissues from one patient to another.

Patients thus may receive new ovaries, adrenal glands and parathyroid glands, the doctors report. This means a new lease on good health and vigor to the patients.

An important factor in the technique is that fragments of any of these glands can continue to produce hormones when transplanted.

The technique was developed by Dr. Hector Castellanos of Magee-Women's Hospital in Pittsburgh in cooperation with Dr. Somers H. Sturgis of Harvard University.

This new method already has enabled doctors to transplant ovarian tissue from a normal woman to a woman who had no ovaries.

Two operations of this type—one in Pittsburgh and the other in Boston—have been performed. Disclosure of the operations was made Tuesday.

Republicans Will Finecomb President's First Budget

By Congressional Quarterly
WASHINGTON — President Johnson may safely assume that his fiscal 1965 budget, due to reach Congress Jan. 21, will receive a "line by line and comma by comma examination" from Republicans this election year.

That is what he himself promised as Senate Majority Leader five years ago, when President Eisenhower sent up a fiscal 1960 budget that proposed a cut of $4 billion in expenditures and projected a paper surplus of $70 million.

That document, said Sen. Johnson at the time, was a "propaganda budget (that) was not prepared to meet the needs of the people, but was prepared to create a political issue for 1960."

As President, Mr. Johnson may expect similar treatment of his first budget, which will call for expenditures of $97.9 billion and receipts of $93 billion in the year starting July 1, leaving a deficit of 4.9 billion.

Like Mr. Eisenhower, in 1959, the President is proposing to spend less (by $300 million) next year than this. And as in 1959, when Mr. Eisenhower estimated an $8.5 billion jump in receipts, Mr. Johnson foresees an increase of $4.6 billion in Treasury collections, despite a proposed tax cut valued at $800 million per month.

Whether the results on June 30, 1965 will square with the projection is another matter. The "propaganda budget" of 1960 proved to be relatively accurate: outgo was $200 million higher than estimated and income $1.4 billion higher. President Johnson should do so good!

Which Budget?

The figures disclosed by the President in his State of the Union message applied to the traditional administrative budget. One year ago, President Kennedy told Congress he was "giving major emphasis to a consolidated cash presentation," which includes some $25 billion in trust fund operations, since that provided "a much more complete picture of government activities and finances than the administrative budget."

On that basis Mr. Kennedy estimated that the Federal Government in fiscal 1964 would take in $112.2 billion and pay out $122.5 billion to the public. Comparable figures for 1965 will be included in the new budget, although not necessarily emphasized. Based on the $4.9 billion growth of trust fund operations in recent years, this cash budget is more likely to be bigger than smaller.

Whether examining the administrative or cash budgets, analysts will be on the lookout for "gimmicks"—a rubric that covers the pious hopes of administrators, the foresighted manipulation of accounts between fiscal years, and other devices that serve to obscure rather than enlighten the true facts of federal spending.

Businessmen Plan March To Support Gov. Scranton

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — The Chamber of Commerce of Greater Philadelphia announced Tuesday that more than 200 businessmen plan to march on Harrisburg for the upcoming special session of the legislature on unemployment compensation in efforts to drum up support for Gov. Scranton's program.

The chamber said the businessmen hope to convince legislators that the only way to stave off bankruptcy of the State Unemployment compensation Fund is by adopting administration-proposed amendments.

No specific date has been set for the visit to Harrisburg. Hal L. Benis, chairman of the board of governors of the chamber's Commerce and Industry Council, said the compensation fund is "on the verge of outright bankruptcy."

Benis said the proposed Scranton amendments were designed to reduce payments from the fund by closing loopholes through which those not in the "ready, willing and able to work" category receive benefits.

Presidents Truman, Eisenhower, and Kennedy, at one time or another, subscribed to "gimmicks" in the budgets they submitted to Congress, presumably in the service of a greater good.

Thus it would be unusual if the first Johnson budget were completely free of such time-worn devices as underestimating the cost of farm price-support programs or overestimating receipts from the sale of government assets.

How Reliable?

A comparison of actual results with the original budget estimates since 1947 suggests that it would be a mistake to regard the upcoming budget as providing an accurate forecast of income and outgo during the next fiscal year.

Barring such unforeseen contingencies as a national emergency or another recession, expenditures are nevertheless likely to be higher than estimated if only because of rising costs. Since at least one-half of the money to be spent next year has already been provided by Congress, only a drastic cut in fiscal 1965 appropriations could be expected to counter-balance that rise.

People In The Spotlight

Frank Sinatra is in headlines again for his apparent quick use of his fists in an argument.

The socialite president of the Del Monte Lodge has a black eye he got during the Bing Crosby golf tournament. He says Frank rapped him.

Here's Richard Osborne's version of the incident: Sinatra and Dean Martin at 1 a.m. stalked into the lobby of the lodge. "We want something to eat," Sinatra said. The cook told him the kitchen was closed. Osborne came to explain the situation. He was carrying a bottle of champagne. Then came the blow on the eye and the champagne went flying.

Walter H. Ballard Jr., a fifth grader didn't want to be separated from his friend Mark Null.

So when the Nulls moved to a home near Dallas—275 miles away, young Walter hitched a ride underneath the truck by clinging to the transmission.

No Comment From Izvestia

MOSCOW (AP)—The government newspaper Izvestia published Tuesday the full text of President Johnson's message to Premier Khrushchev on territorial disputes. The newspaper published the text on its second page without comment.

His leather jacket got caught in the undercarriage, he nearly fell off, the exhaust kept him warm but he hung on. When he got to his destination, he learned his parents would arrive to take him home. Futility trip!

Willard Wirz, secretary of labor said this week that discrimination against women is not a matter of prejudice anymore.

"Now it's a matter of habit," he said, and the government is out to change the habit. The president told Wirz that there is to be no distinction whatsoever. About one-fourth or 600,000 federal employees are women, Wirz said.

Matthews H. McClosky, the man credited with originating the $100 a plate dinner to bring in campaign funds will be back at his old fund raising job in the near future.

He resigned as ambassador to Ireland to help Democrats raise money for the 1964 presidential campaign. He says he'll do most of his fund raising in Pennsylvania, his home state.

McClosky had been treasurer of the Democratic National Committee for eight years when President Kennedy named him ambassador to Ireland in 1962.

Sen. Wayne Morris, D-Oregon, assailed this week the Paul Revere Associated Yeomen Inc. calling it a neo-fascist group which has included him and other members of Congress on a "purge list."

Morse said those on the lists should be grateful since it would win them more votes.

He told the Senate that members of the group "make the mistake of thinking voters are as stupid as they are."

State Rejects Plea For Study Of Philly Corruption

HARRISBURG (AP) — Atty. Gen. Walter E. Alessandrini rejected Wednesday a request for the state to continue an investigation into alleged graft and corruption in Philadelphia's municipal government.

"After a careful and detailed consideration of all of the facts available to us, we have concluded that there is no practicable further action that can be taken at this time," he said in a statement.

His conclusion came in reply to a request from the Committee of 70, a civic watchdog group in Philadelphia, to have the state continue the inquiry now that a special Grand Jury had completed a 13-month investigation.

Hits Grand Jury

At the same time, Alessandrini reprimanded the Grand Jury for recommending that certain officers and editors of the Philadelphia Evening Bulletin be held in contempt for refusing to divulge sources of published stories concerning the probe. The State Supreme Court threw out the recommendation out.

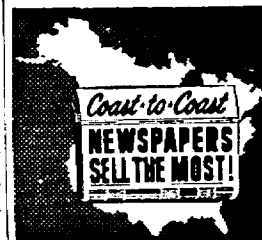

"The Grand Jury went far beyond its legitimate function and indulged in an improper action in criticizing the officers of the Philadelphia Evening Bulletin for asserting legal constitutional rights . . ." He declared. "It (the jury) showed a lack of understanding of the true nature of a free press."

Alessandrini, a Republican, emphasizing that he was not at all satisfied with the results of the investigation or the manner in which it was conducted.

He made particular note of the jury's report which found "a sinister liaison between the zoning board of adjustment and the Democratic County Executive Committee," and a "sinister connection" between the Democratic-controlled City Council and the County Organization.

The Attorney General called the references a "glaring indictment of the entire scheme of the political sale of legislation and favors."

Alessandrini was particularly critical of what he called "the obstructionist tactics of the district attorney and other elected city officials" in not starting the probe before the end of 1962. James C. Crumlish is district attorney in Philadelphia.

The Johnson Kickback

Recent testimony in the U. S. Senate investigation of Robert G. Baker, former secretary of the Senate Democratic majority and protégé of President Lyndon B. Johnson when he was in the Senate, proves again that in politics your friends can kill you with too much kindness.

Don B. Reynolds, an insurance broker in business with Baker, testified under oath that with Baker's help he sold $200,000 of life insurance to Johnson between 1957 and 1961.

Baker, who became a partner with Reynolds in 1955, was paid $15,000 over the years for "services rendered" such as helping to sell life insurance to Johnson.

This was just one aspect of the many dealings in which Baker used his influence as a Johnson man and as secretary to the Democratic majority to make considerably more than his regular $19,500 salary.

Reynolds also testified that a Johnson aide, Walter Jenkins, who is now serving in the White House with the President, talked him into buying $1,200 worth of advertising on an Austin, Texas, television station owned by the LBJ Company, a Johnson family business, at the time of the life insurance sale.

Jenkins denied in an affidavit sent to the investigating committee that he ever talked to Reynolds about buying advertising time.

Reynolds also said that Baker urged him to give a $542 stereophonic phonograph in 1959 to Senator Johnson and pay $42.50 for its installation.

In his affidavit, Jenkins said he understood the record player was a present to Johnson from Baker and Pierre Salinger, White House press secretary, said "the President never had any communication with Mr. Reynolds about the Record Player and considered it a gift from a long-time employee."

The White House said nothing about the television advertising purchase.

Apparently, the less said the better, for this was the first real black eye given to the new President. It changes his image slightly, but like all black eyes, it will go away.

The President so far is sufficiently removed from the mud to avoid getting splattered. But his friends and his associates, who wanted to please him with favors, look a little dirty, and the whole affair is clearly not doing President Johnson any good.

Presidents of the United States are supposed to be beyond reproach. They are a combination of national image, Santa Claus, grandfather, father, George Washington, mother and God. Any scandal, however slight, damages their reputation more than it would that of an ordinary mortal.

Comment Of The Day

"I see no difference in the acceptance of an expensive stereo from the acceptance of a mink or vicuna coat, a Deep Freeze or an Oriental rug."

the vicuna coats of the preceding administration and will not defend the stereo now."

—Sen. John J. Williams, Republican of Delaware.

Walter Lippmann

French Romance With China

By Walter Lippmann

There is little reason to be surprised or mystified by the news that France and Red China will establish diplomatic relations. For a long time General De Gaulle has been saying that there would be a schism in the Communist world between Russia and China and that when that happened it would be necessary to have diplomatic relations with both Communist states.

Until the Sino-Soviet break, it was possible to deal with China through its overlord in Moscow. After the break, channels would have to be opened with Peking.

General De Gaulle, we must remember, does not share the American theory that diplomatic relations carry with them a kind of moral and political ratification. The French hold the traditional view, which used to be our own view as well, that diplomatic recognition is the recognition of a fact, that the government recognized is in fact the government. Most European, and indeed most other governments, take this factual and quite unemotional view of diplomatic recognition.

Nor is there any mystery as to why Paris and Peking are resuming relations now, rather than a year ago or a year hence. Quite recently, presumably as a result of the visit to China of M. Edgar Faure, the Peking government made the essential concession. Formerly, it would have insisted that France must break relations with Formosa as the condition of resuming relations with mainland China.

On this, Peking has given way. General De Gaulle is no longer being asked to abandon Chiang Kai-Shek in order to have relations with Mao Tse Tung. Almost immediately after this concession was made, General De Gaulle took his decision.

It marks a very significant turn in the relations between Red China and the non-Communist world. For it opens the door, or at least unlocks the door, to a general recognition of the realities in the Far East — that the government in Peking is in fact the government of "China" and that the government in Formosa is in fact the government of Formosa. Certainly, as Monsieur Faure has said, while it can be argued that Formosa belongs to China, it cannot be argued that China belongs to Formosa.

We have been in the habit of describing the result as a "two-China policy." This turns out to be a misleading description of a good thing. For none of the Chinese, Red or white, will admit that there is more than one China. The accurate description of the real situation is to say that there is China, of which the capital is in Peking, and that there is an independent Formosa, of which the capital is in Taipei.

The problem of the future is to work out a relationship between these two entities — be it independent separation, internationalization, guaranteed neutralization of Formosa or, eventually, uncoerced reunion. Far from resenting General De Gaulle's initiative, we must recognize — even if it is politically inconvenient to say so out loud — that he has already achieved an important gain. He has removed the insurmountable obstacle to an eventual settlement with China. No doubt we are nowhere near a settlement. But as long as the realities of the situation in China and Formosa are not recognized, no settlement will ever be possible.

We must now expect to see many practical results from the action taken by General De Gaulle. There is bound to come the acceptance of Peking as the government of China in the Security Council of the United Nations.

The question then will be whether Nationalist China will still be granted and will accept a seat in the General Assembly. Much will depend on whether Chiang Kai-Shek accepts the situation, which General De Gaulle has created or in a mood of anger opposes it and breaks relations with France. If he does that, nothing will give greater pleasure to Peking.

Looking beyond the exchange of ambassadors, we can see now that more than a formality is intended. France is re-entering the Far East as a greater power. If we are wise, we shall welcome her, knowing that our solitary eminence and our isolated role in the Far East, which are the unplanned results of the second world war, cannot endure forever.

Our isolation in the Far East has fostered in this country a neurotic jingoism about any country which differs with us and does not keep in step. But the postwar period is ended in the Far East as it has ended in Europe, and Gaullist France will not be the last country to act accordingly. We must expect to see this in Japan.

In my view, we should welcome General De Gaulle's advice, his help, his influence, which is greater than many of us realize, and his initiative. For without his help there is no prospect that we shall be able alone to extricate ourselves honorably from the entanglement in Southeast Asia.

General De Gaulle told President Kennedy when they met in Paris in 1961 that no military solution is possible and that it would be necessary to seek a political solution. This was the judgment of an old hand. For the French were in Indo-China for about 80 years. They fought an eight-year war in Indo-China. They are far from a stupid people and quite able to look at the facts. General De Gaulle is a military thinker of the very first rank.

No doubt the administration will go through the formalities of protesting against the French decision. But let it not allow itself to be angry and nurse a grievance about an achievement for which, because it takes the situation off dead center, we shall in the days to come be grateful.

Veteran's Guide

Q — I hear a lot about deadline dates for GI loans. Does it make any difference if the veteran is disabled?

A — If discharged (or retired) for disability incurred in the line of duty, a veteran is entitled to the maximum deadline date for the war in which he was disabled. This means July 25, 1967, for World War II service and January 31, 1975, for Korean Conflict Service.

'Kitchie Kitchie Kool'

The Pennsylvania Story

By Mason Denison
(Fourth of Four Parts)

HARRISBURG — For those Pennsylvanians caught in the Philadelphia traffic (ticket-and-fine racket) there is a "killer clause" in the background that can, and is, used to knock the props from under those who buck the charge and refuse to pay up.

It works like this: The Philadelphia bureaucrats notify the State Department of Revenue here in Harrisburg that they want a "Stop" placed against your license for failure to pay the supposed traffic violation fine.

When this happens and your license comes up for renewal, it is held up (not renewed) until the "Stop" has been removed.

We have in our possession one of these notifications from a "constable" in Philadelphia sent to a Berwick resident. Printed on cheap paper, it carries in the upper left corner a big official-looking State seal, with "The Commonwealth of Pennsylvania" printed across the top.

This is what the "summons" sent by this constable (his name in this instance is unimportant) says:

"We hold, in our possession, a warrant for your arrest for violation of the Pennsylvania Motor Vehicle Code.

"This is your final notice, and should you refuse to make payment in full within 72 hours from date of this letter, we shall place our complaint on the Stop File of your State Capitol against your license, and take prompt steps to execute this warrant.

"If you wish to settle this matter without further litigation, you may mail us a money order or certified check to cover payment of your fine and cost, PAYABLE TO — RETURN THIS NOTICE & WARRANT WITH PAYMENT. NO PERSONAL CHECKS."

(Underlining and capital letters as on notice.)

In space for "Date of Violation" was typed this: "OCT. . . . What date is October with quote marks?

In this case the fine and costs were listed as $12.

It is interesting to note that the notice states clearly the check is to be made out to the individual name of the constable, not any governmental function, such as the City of Philadelphia, etc.

The "Stop File" is a threat in writing if there ever was one — but unfortunately it's a threat few know about until it's too late, when they wonder why their license renewal doesn't come through!

Yup — as long as that "Stop" is on your record, your license renewal will not move from the Department of Revenue to you, until the "Stop" is removed by the requesting agency, that is, until the "reason" for the "Stop" is "satisfied!"

The salient fact that stands out inescapably is that either there is concerted, determined, wholesale fraud underway on the traffic ticket-and-fine front in Philadelphia — or the stupidity of the "mistake-making" is too appalling to even attempt to understand. If the latter is the case there better be some heavy cleaning out of the "careless mistake-prone" dunderheads in the Philadelphia city administration.

That there is any "horns-wagging" involved, the good bureaucrats and politicians of the City of Philadelphia of course will stoutly deny — which is for the birds.

It is unthinkable that the citizens of the State of Pennsylvania must tolerate such asinine injustice — regardless of the plous wails from the red-faced bureaucracy and politocracy of the nominally really great city of Philadelphia. The Department of Justice should move with speed and dispatch to find the "reason" and the "whyfore" of this unjust penalization of Pennsylvania's citizenry — and then make certain it is stopped once and for all.

What corrective steps — or legislation — may be needed should be of utmost serious consideration, a matter within the provinces of the executive and legislative branches.

One Small Bullet

One small bullet, smooth and gray,
Changed the course of events
One day,
One small bullet.

Sunshine, handshakes, wavings,
Smile,
Seemed to make the trip
worthwhile,
One small bullet.

A flame of hatred had been lit,
A rifle cracked, a President hit,
One small bullet.

Kings, princesses, heads of state,
Multitudes, from far and near,
Pay homage at a great man's bier,
One small bullet.

World full of sorrow, air filled with lament,
A happy home desolate, huge sums spent,
One small bullet.

Young wife stoic, beyond belief,
Children too young to know
her grief,
One small bullet.

Venom and hatred, that's hard
to down,
Emitted much in a Texas
town,
One small bullet.

Even the Heavens tried in vain,
To wash out the sadness and pain,
With a day of constant rain,
One small bullet.

A catastrophe passed throughout the night,
A cortege, caisson, horses
white,
One small bullet.

Black charger, with reversed
boot,
Muffled drums, a boy's salute,
One small bullet.

And so a saddened world asks
"Why?"
Devils are born, and good men die,
One small bullet.

Oh! God of all the human race,
Why must all of this take place?
Because of one small bullet,
One small bullet.

WONDERING

I just can't help but wonder
What life would really be -
If you were very far away;
And, no longer close to me.

We've had our ups and downs,
Sweetheart,
Our good times and our fears,
But, now, instead of happiness
Our eyes are filled with tears.

I don't know what has happened,
Or why we always fight;
But, whatever be the reason -
I know it's just not right.

This world would be unpleasant
To waste through all alone;
What good is our existence?
If there is no happy home.

OH, PEG

Is your Grandmother's ghost
On the newel post?
She was standing there,
As I came down the stair,
In a rusty, black dress
And long white hair.
She looked old, and cold,
With a desolate air,
As if she knew you didn't care
To be host to a ghost
In your house anywhere.

The Allen-Scott Report

Slap At U.S.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 23 — President de Gaulle's haughty flouting of the U.S. in establishing diplomatic and trade relations with Red China is a glaring instance of adding insult to injury.

While "le grand Charley" is in the process of snuggling up to the Communists in the Far East, his government, through a virtually wholly owned company, is crassly chiseling millions from the U.S. on an anti-tank weapon financed by this country for the defense of France in Europe.

This bald shakedown is being pulled off despite the fact that the U.S. has given France more than $4 billion in military aid.

The details of this shabby backstage affair are spelled out in a caustic report submitted to Congress by Comptroller General Joseph Campbell. His account is a devastating commentary on foreign aid.

It reveals vividly and clearly how the biggest beneficiary of such assistance hasn't hesitated to act with shocking and tawdry avarice.

"L'honneur" and "la gloire" are notably absent.

As reported by Comptroller Campbell, the U.S. put up a good part of the money for the development of this anti-tank weapon by a French concern almost entirely owned by the French government. In return, France gave the U.S. production rights without cost.

Despite this categorical agreement, the French firm demanded and obtained royalty fees—

up to $3.6 million, depending on the number of weapons produced.

Comptroller Campbell leaves little doubt the French government profited directly from this gyp, which he holds is not only outrageous but squarely in violation of mutual defense understandings between the U.S. and France.

De Gaulle's Other Side — Portions of the Comptroller General's scathing report are classified. Why that should be so is baffling, as there are no military secrets in it.

One explanation may be that the disclosures are highly embarrassing to State and Defense Department authorities. It's an old bureaucratic dodge to keep such facts from coming to light by labeling them confidential.

This secrecy is particularly mystifying at this time in view of De Gaulle's repeated affronts to the U.S.

Latest of these is a report published in several French papers that he plans to stop off in Cuba on his way back from a visit to Mexico in March. There has been no official confirmation of these press stories.

But France maintains diplomatic relations with Castro and recently has considerably increased its trade with him.

The Comptroller General's report pulls no punches in castigating the anti-tank weapon affair. Following are highlights that recount the details of this astonishing shakedown:

"Our review disclosed that the United States government has agreed to pay a French contractor, 99.5 percent owned by the French government, a minimum of $1.1 million, a maximum of $3.6 million, depending on the number of weapons produced, for the right to manufacture the weapon in the United States.

"This payment was agreed to despite the fact that (1) the United States contributed a significant amount toward the cost involved in the mutual development of this weapon, and (2) France agreed to grant the United States the right to produce and use the weapon without cost.

"The United States has granted military assistance valued at over $4.1 billion to France to the end of fiscal 1962. Included in this assistance was over $77 million contributed toward the cost of mutual weapons development projects.

"Inherent in the United States military assistance program has been the understanding that governments of countries to which assistance is granted will not profit from such programs. This understanding, that the French government would not make a profit on the anti-tank weapon, is clearly stated in the bilateral agreement and in this particular project agreement between France and the United States.

"Nevertheless, the United States, in order to obtain the right to produce this mutually developed weapons system, is being required to pay license and royalty fees to a French corporation which is substantially owned and controlled by the French government.

"It is reasonable to assume that the French government will directly benefit from this agreement to the extent of its substantial ownership in the French corporation.

"In view of the above, it would appear that, after contributing billions of dollars to the French government for military assistance which included many millions for mutual weapons development, the French government should not have placed the U.S. in the position where it must pay a fee to produce a weapon on which contributions under the mutual assistance program were made toward cost of development.

Infant Feeding
From the moment the newborn baby arrives, the starting gun is fired for the beginning of a gentle, but ever-present competition — especially if there's another new arrival in the block.

It's infant versus infant, both wearing white trunks, evenly matched for the first smile, the first tooth, and the first step.

When one baby begins his solid feeding, the other must follow suit quickly. For eating solid food has become the guideline to the moment when the infant comes into his own as a full-fledged member of the family.

Too Solid, Too Soon?
Now, Dr. Douglas E. Johnston, of the University of Rochester, feels that the tendency to start very young infants on solid foods may be responsible for the frequency of early allergies in children.

For children with a family history of allergy, he suggests, "early solid food feedings may sensitize them and produce allergic responses."

Dr. Johnston recognizes that infants need milk, vitamins, iron, calcium and protein. He does not, however, feel that infants need a lot of starches and cereals and vegetables. He decries the mother's need to overfeed her baby. He feels this is a reflection of the mother's childhood deprivation.

From Chauvin came the word "chauvinism," which means exaggerated patriotism.

DEAR D. and D.: Striking one's glass would startle and annoy everyone in the restaurant, including the waiter. Snapping the fingers is for the dogs, and whistling is for the birds. Simply say, "Waiter, please."

Survival Kit For Civilians

By Lester L. Coleman, M.D.

The medical research and development division of the U.S. Army constantly seeks new methods for preserving the health and insuring the survival of the soldier in war and peace.

Many of their contributions, when found to be completely satisfactory, are turned over for civilian use with gratifying success.

Recently, a survival kit was specifically created to help the field soldier who has been separated or isolated from his company. The civilian hiker, camper, mountain climber, hunter or fisherman can benefit by these packaged kits.

The containers are divided into two parts, each weighing less than one pound. The contents of the kit were carefully chosen after rigid computer studies were made to determine those items most vital to health, survival, and rescue.

'Operation Kit'

The first container, called the "operation kit," contains a signal mirror, flexible saw, flare gun, two white flares, gauze, adhesive plaster, absorbent adhesive bandages, bouillon cubes.

It also includes a chemical for water purification, salt, antidiarrhea tablets, a solution to treat cuts, scratches and insect bites, antibiotic tablets, ointments, and other specially selected medical items.

"A back-up to the operational kit," the Army medical department states, "is the reserve component which is principally comprised of the same items as the first kit, but with additional features: fishing lines and hooks, sewing kit with magnetized needles to point north, tablets for malaria, headaches and even a fire starter."

The containers are sealed with waterproof tape and encased in nylon bags ready for attachment to a belt.

Infant Feeding

From the moment the newborn baby arrives, the starting gun is fired for the beginning of a gentle, but ever-present competition — especially if there's another new arrival in the block.

It's infant versus infant, both wearing white trunks, evenly matched for the first smile, the first tooth, and the first step.

Chauvinism

Nicholas Chauvin was a French soldier who served under Napoleon and was wounded several times.

After the fall of Napoleon and his empire, Chauvin became the laughingstock of his acquaintances by constantly praising the good old days, Napoleon's greatness, and the glory of the empire.

Later, two playwrights, having heard of Chauvin's unbounded patriotism, spread his name by using him as the basis for a comic character in a successful play.

From Chauvin came the word "chauvinism," which means exaggerated patriotism.

Dynamite Blast Shatters House

CRAIGS MEADOW — Flying rock from a dynamite blast set off by the H.R. Imbt Construction Co., the firm widening Rt. 209, has seriously damaged the home of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Boushell at East Stroudsburg RD 2.

According to Mrs. Boushell all the windows in the front of the house were blown out, the roof was damaged and the aluminum siding was "ruined."

Harry Pfeiffer, project supervisor for the construction firm, said the blasting was being done Tuesday at 2:10 p.m. about 140 feet away from the house and "we had no idea that this would happen."

The company from State College, Pa., is widening Rt. 209 and was working on a stretch of road between Craig Meadows and Marshall's Creek. Pfeiffer said 21 holes were filled with blasting powder and rock from one hole did all the damage.

Mrs. Boushell said, "They asked me to leave the home yesterday (Tuesday) and they said they would pull big trucks in front of the house to protect it. They said they did not think anything would happen."

Pfeiffer explained that Mrs. Boushell was asked to leave the house merely as a precautionary measure and the trucks were moved in front of the home to deflect any small fragments of rock from chipping a picture window.

"If we had the slightest doubt this would have happened we would have done something else," he said.

Pfeiffer said the construction company's insurance adjuster would look at the house today to determine the exact amount of damages the blast caused. He said he thought the company would be held responsible for all the damage to the home.

Airport Sells $1,978 In Services

STROUDSBURG — The 1963 audit showed the Mt. Pocono Airport Authority spent $16,712.43 in operating the airport and took in $1,978.14 in receipts from concessions and services offered at the airport.

The audit, filed by Herbert B. Crane, Stroudsburg certified public accountant, showed the authority made up the difference largely with $12,593.38 in grants from four municipalities and Monroe County.

Contributing to the airport's operation were the county, $10,000; Barre Township, $1,100; Mt. Pocono Borough, $663; Tobyhanna Township, $380.38; and Collierville Township, $250.

Money was received from the down fees, $115.50; telephone booth commissions, $7.87; gasoline and oil sales, $1,503.77; ground rentals, $330; commissions on gross revenue, $136.66; and Bell Telephone Co., right of way payment, $1.

The audit showed the authority had assets and liabilities of $433,066.78. The airport was listed as being worth $371,493.02. The largest liability was a $56,171.25 bank loan.

Kiwanis Hear Exchange Student

STROUDSBURG — Anders Anderson, an exchange student from Svalvaer, Norway, addressed the Kiwanis Club of Stroudsburg at the weekly luncheon meeting yesterday at the Penn-Stroud Hotel.

With the aid of color slides, the speaker described his home as a fishing village which is located above the Arctic Circle.

Anderson said that from the end of November until the beginning of January there is no sun and from the end of May until the middle of July there is no darkness.

The speaker said that most people work at the two occupations of farming in the summer and fishing during the winter.

Program chairman was Dr. John R. Wildrick.

Richard Flaville and Edward Glauser were inducted into the club by Dr. LeRoy J. Koehler.

Buffalo Man Sent To Jail

STROUDSBURG — Charles O'Grady, of Buffalo, N. Y., was committed to Monroe County jail yesterday on a public intoxication charge by East Stroudsburg police.

O'Grady will be given a hearing before Justice of the Peace Harold Larson, Sr., of East Stroudsburg.

The parked cars are owned by Harold Albert, 59, of East Stroudsburg RD 3 and Frank J. Flaherty, 38, of Stroudsburg RD 2.

Tebbs estimates damage to the Haight truck at $50; the Albert car, $400; and Flaherty's station wagon, less than $50.

Haight will be charged with reckless driving.

STROUDSBURG — John M. Price last night repudiated charges by the Republican County chairman that the two majority Republican county commissioners are fully responsible for dissension that exists at the courthouse.

"All the blame should not be laid on us. Some 50 per cent of the blame can be laid right back on Kresge's (Harold B. Kresge, GOP county chairman) lap," said Price.

Price said he would rather have a talk with Kresge before he revealed the differences that exist between him and the newly recognized Republican county chairman.

Kresge said yesterday, "I will have a meeting with Price and Rader (Stanley Rader, the other GOP commissioner) this week and I believe I am going to be able to get them together."

Rader was unavailable for comment last night. He was in Harrisburg yesterday with a county delegation attending a school for new county commissioners.

Commenting on the fact that the Republican-controlled board of commissioners appointed three Democrats to key county posts Price said:

"The Republican party would expect, and rightly so that we appoint a Republican solicitor and sealer of weights, and measures. I nominated Republicans for both these jobs and was out-voted." Russe, Mervine, a Democrat, was named county solicitor.

"The one Democrat I did vote for, William Reaser, chief clerk, was highly qualified for the job."

"He had 16 years experience in the personnel department of Worthington Motor Co. and four and one-half years with the U. S. paratroopers. I don't think politics should be considered in this job."

Discussing the possible benefits of a meeting with Rader and Kresge — a meeting first proposed by Kresge at a Young Republican Club meeting Tuesday night — Price said:

Evaded Questions

"I will accept an invitation to any such meeting but I will expect Kresge to do what's right. He, as county chairman, has evaded many questions that should be answered and aren't."

"Rader and I were in Harrisburg today and we are getting along fine. I think things will be ironed out in time. I am going to try and do the best job I can over the long haul. I am not going to let two appointments take my mind off that aim."

Delaware River Homes Burglarized

STROUDSBURG — Several summer homes along the Delaware River at Minsink Hills were broken into early yesterday morning and articles were stolen from them.

A trailer owned by A. M. Price of East Stroudsburg was broken into. A spokesman for the family said they have been unable to get to the trailer to check what, if anything, has been taken.

Robert Melick of Delaware Water Gap, is the owner of another summer home broken into.

He said last night, "Yes, my home in Minsink Hills was entered and I am missing several things. My home was not the only one broken into. I prefer that you contact the State Police at Stroudsburg and get the story from them."

Trooper Samuel Valick said that a television set was stolen from the Melick home. He knew nothing of the Price trailer. He said, "I don't have a complaint on that and this is the first I knew of a burglary there."

The burglary at the Melick home was discovered Jan. 21 at 12:15 p. m. The burglar gained entrance to the home by breaking a window in the front door, police said.

Driver Hits 5th St. Car; Is Arrested

CLEARVIEW — Reckless driving charges will be filed against an East Stroudsburg man involved in a three car accident yesterday at 7:10 p.m. in front of Stroud Twp. Municipal Building on N. Fifth St., Stroudsburg.

Paul D. Haight, 57, of 61 Smith St., East Stroudsburg, was traveling north on N. Fifth St. when the truck he was driving crossed the centerline of the highway, went to the left side of the highway, struck a snow bank, continued through the snow and across the Stroud Twp. Firehouse driveway, and crashed into one parked car causing it to slide into a second parked car.

Haight received a cut on his forehead. H. W. Tebbs, Stroud Twp. police chief, said last night.

The parked cars are owned by Harold Albert, 59, of East Stroudsburg RD 3 and Frank J. Flaherty, 38, of Stroudsburg RD 2.

Tebbs estimates damage to the Haight truck at $50; the Albert car, $400; and Flaherty's station wagon, less than $50.

Haight will be charged with reckless driving.

The annual report on services for 1963 given by Major Baker indicated that a record 11,383 adults participated in 361 army activities.

The youth work load was slightly under last year's figures with 19,662 taking part in 537 activities. Baker pointed out that 600 people attended weekly programs at the Citadel.

Baker also reported that the army assisted 93 families with material help and many others were given counsel and guidance.

He said 295 transients were given 326 meals tickets and lodging was provided for ten persons in 1963.

Baker announced that Captain Patricia Miller, army assistant officer for the past 18 months, has received travel orders from division headquarters and will be replaced in East Stroudsburg by Lt. Jean Duncan.

Marty Baldwin reported that the entertainment committee is working on plans to bring the New York Staff Band to Stroudsburg in May.

Warner, chairman of the nominating committee, said the committee will meet before the February meeting and pick a slate of officers and committees for 1964.

Mrs. Lottie Stiff Of Nazareth
May Stiff, 67, mother of Mrs. John Hancy of Stroudsburg, RD 2, died yesterday in her Nazareth home.

In addition to Mrs. Hancy, another daughter, Mrs. Winston Hutcheson of Jacksonville, Fla., and a son, David Hagley of Wilkes-Barre, survive their mother.

Funeral arrangements will be announced by the Daniel G. Warner Funeral Home in Stroudsburg.

Employment Office Finds 92 Jobs

STROUDSBURG—Officials of the Pennsylvania State Employment Service announced yesterday that the Stroudsburg office placed 92 persons in employment for the month of December, 1963, 82 of which were in local industry.

They accepted work applications from 180 persons, provided counseling interviews to 58 individuals in need of occupational counseling and administered 12 aptitude tests.

They received 106 job openings for work and referred 162 applicants to local employers.

Big Dam At Tocks Island Debated By League

EAST STROUDSBURG — "People will die because of the dam. Who will die because of the lack of it?"

"The dam will be built, that is not the major question. The recreational area is what we are here to discuss."

These were two opposing positions debated sharply at the League of Women Voters meeting Tuesday night in the East Stroudsburg office of the Monroe Security Bank and Trust Co.

Mrs. John H. Britten, vice president of the league, was guest speaker. She reviewed research on the Tocks Island Dam which began several years ago as part of the league's study of "Conservation and development of natural resources in the public interest."

This conservation study is part of the national current agenda of the league.

Mrs. Britten described progress of the several years study conducted in relation to water supply, flood control, pollution, irrigation, watershed management, navigation, fish and wildlife.

As a result, the local league earlier voted to support national policies and practices of the federal administration and financing of the Tocks Island project, Mrs. Britten said.

League Questions

Now the League is questioning its support because the federal government's proposal to establish the Tocks Island National Recreational Area concerns more than conservation of water and flood control.

The Inter-League council of the Delaware River Basin, organized during the league study, feels the Tocks Island recreational area project should be considered for possible League action because of its multi-purpose development.

Questions from the council which includes league members from the four states in the Delaware River Basin, were part of the evening's discussion. Mrs. Joseph Shukaitis, a lifelong resident of the Stroudsburg area, appealed to the League on behalf of the anti-dam local group opposing the construction of the large dam.

The discussion became heated. Mrs. Shukaitis wants the league to vote against the construction of a large dam which would provide water to the cities of New York, Philadelphia and Wilmington.

She feels that once the dam is built local areas will not be able to use the water conserved by the dam because it will be under federal jurisdiction for aid to the larger cities.

Small Dams

"Why do we not first install small multiple dams throughout the Delaware River Basin in order to provide the growing inland population with maximum water supply and flood control," she asked.

This type of flood control project was also considered by the Army Corps of Engineers which studied the Delaware River Basin.

Desalination of ocean water is the answer to the larger coastal cities water problem, Mrs. Shukaitis feels.

The group did not meet to discuss big dams vs. small dams, but was concerned with the recreational area proposal, Mrs. Britten said. However, private enterprise vs. federal control of the area, socialism, supply and demand, and the newly constructed highway system entered into the talks.

Will Be Built

Mrs. Britten stated that the dam is going to be built. Reviewing the situation, she told the 20 women present, "The project which concerns us the most deeply is the Tocks Island Dam and the Tocks Island National Recreation Area."

MISS POCONO MOUNTAINS — Monica Borek of Stroudsburg receives cash awards from area banks from Mrs. Robert Miller, as she leaves for Kutztown State College. Mrs. Miller was director of the Miss Pocono Mountains Pageant in 1963.

Miss Pocono Mountains 1964 Starts College Art Course

STROUDSBURG — Monica Borek, of Stroudsburg, Miss Pocono Mountains of 1964, left yesterday for Kutztown State College, where she has been accepted as a freshman art education student.

Miss Borek received cash awards presented by Monroe Security Bank and Trust Co., First Stroudsburg National Bank, East Stroudsburg National Bank, and Northeastern Pennsylvania Bank and Trust.

In addition to these educational aids, Miss Pocono Mountains annually has been offered a four-year senatorial scholarship to one of four outstanding universities in Pennsylvania. But Miss Borek wished to study art at Kutztown, which is not included in the senatorial scholarship provisions.

Miss Borek is also serving as entries committee chairman for the annual Miss Pocono Mountains Scholarship Pageant, which will be staged during September's Flaming Foliage Time in the Poconos, as it was last fall.

Contestants for the tenth Miss Pocono title should contact Miss Borek, either at her Ann St. address in Stroudsburg or to her college address at Kutztown.

Entrants must be high school graduates, single, and between the ages of 18 to 25 by September, 1964.

Mrs. Miller will again direct the annual Miss Pocono Mountains Pageant, which will be the tenth anniversary contest.

Planned Parenthood Assn. Gives Books To Library

STROUDSBURG — Monroe County Planned Parenthood Assn., has donated three books to Monroe County Public Library in Stroudsburg.

The books are: "Whom God Hath Joined" by Dr. David R. Mace; "Release From Sexual Tensions," by Dr. Mary Steichen Calderone; and "The Time Has Come," by Dr. John Rock.

Dr. Mace's book is one of instruction and counsel to help in guiding married couples toward a better understanding of marriage as a Christian institution. It is designed to be of help throughout married life as problems of adjustment arise.

Dr. Calderone's book is written simply for adults of all ages, this book is for those who open-mindedly seek ways to make sex the great and constructive force in their lives that it could and should be.

Dr. Rock's book seriously confronts the question of what can and should be done to develop a public policy on birth control that meets the needs of all religions.

He is a devout Catholic with unchallenged medical knowledge and writes from the perspective of his church.

Other pamphlets given to the library are: "What Is Marriage Counseling?" "Too Young To Marry," "Coming of Age," "Problems of Teen-Agers," "The Unmarried Mother," "Understand Your Menopause," and "Sexual Harmony in Marriage."

Wesleyan Choir Sings Monday

STROUDSBURG — The 46-voice A capella choir of Dakota Wesleyan University, Mitchell, S. D., will present a concert at the Stroudsburg Methodist Church Monday, Jan. 27, at 8 p. m.

The choir is on an extended tour that will take it through nine states. The group will present 16 concerts during the tour, in high schools and churches.

Donna Wolf, of Hazel, S. D., a member of the choir, is the sister of the wife of Dinus Briggs, assistant pastor at the Stroudsburg Methodist Church.

The choir sings a full program of sacred music for churches and secular music for high schools.

Monroe H-E Parley Tonight

SWIFTWATER — Monroe County Health and Physical Education and Recreation Assn. will meet today at 7:30 in Pocono Mountain Joint High School in Swiftwater.

Guest speaker will be Dr. James Fahl. He will deliver a talk about cancer.

House Unit Votes Seneca Funds

WASHINGTON (AP) A bill to authorize approximately $19.5 million in rehabilitation and damage funds for New York's Seneca Indians cleared its second major hurdle in the House Wednesday.

The House interior committee approved the bill unanimously. It is designed to help the Seneca adjust to construction of the Allegheny River dam and reservoir. The dam, being built at Kinzua, Pa., will back water over the state line into New York.

There were indications the committee might try to speed House action on the bill.

Chairman James A. Haley, D-Fla., of the House interior subcommittee, which approved the bill last month, said he will sound out House leaders on the possibility of bypassing the Rules Committee and bringing the bill directly to the House floor for action.

The Rules Committee, which schedules measures for House action, is now considering the administration's civil rights bill.

Haley expressed fear that unless the Indian bill is passed early in February it might be delayed by debate on civil rights. He said quick action to help the Indians is essential because the Army engineers plan to begin filling the reservoir next October.

Newspapers call for conservation of natural resources, keep tab of Members of Parliament and Legislation, and take readers to the heart of a news story in the making.

Democrats Talk Politics: Ideal And Practical

STROUDSBURG — Dr. Kurt Wimer, professor and head of the Social Studies Department at East Stroudsburg State College, and Stuart Pipher, new county Democratic commissioner, were the guest speakers at the regular monthly meeting of the Democratic Club of the Stroudsburg Tuesday at the YMCA in Stroudsburg.

Donald E. James, new club president, noted that the club had set a membership goal of 200. He urged those present to actively seek new members and to keep close track of new voters for registration purposes.

Dr. Wimer, first speaker in a three part series on practical politics, asked the question, "How can one interest the citizen in the government?"

He pointed out that the Democratic form of government which exists in the United States is not increasing over the world in spite of the fact that the United Nations now has 113 members, more than double the number which it started with in 1945.

"The reason", he said, "is that democracy is an advanced form of government in which the individual citizen has a very large measure of liberty which he must be capable of handling."

"Even in the United States less than 10 per cent of the voters are politically active, and less than three per cent belong to political organizations."

As a solution Dr. Wimer advocated cutting away complicated side issues to get to the basic issues involved in questions so that the citizens of the country as a whole can make themselves heard on these basic issues.

Pipher, who took office as county commissioner on Jan. 6, said "The commissioners and their newly selected Democratic Solicitor have been working virtually full time since that date."

"Today we spent most of the day at the Mt. Pocono Airport", he said. "Wednesday we will be in Harrisburg all day with the solicitor and our new Democratic Chief Clerk, and Thursday we will be meeting again all day long."

Navy May Have To Cut Waste In 11 Shipyards

By Congressional Quarterly
WASHINGTON — Like the tycoon forced by taxes to sell off a mansion or two, the Navy is about to close down one or more of its 11 shipyards.

Where the axe is to fall won't be known until the study ordered last month by Secretary of Defense Robert McNamara is completed, later this year.

Yet the decision to dispose of "excess capacity" is all but certain. In the light of all the relevant evidence.

Some of it bears on the relative costs of naval versus private shipyards. Some of it concerns the loss of commercial business by private yards in recent years. And some of it points to a substantially smaller Navy in the years ahead.

What it adds up to is that the Navy can no longer justify the full-time operation of 11 yards, representing an investment of $3 billion and employing 93,000 persons.

Both economic and strategic factors will shape the choice of the cutbacks. But the cities concerned will employ whatever political leverage they possess to escape the headman's blade.

Thirty years ago the fate of the Navy yards was also a hot issue before Congress. Rep. Carl Vinson (D-Ga.), then Chairman of the House Naval Affairs Committee, was pushing through the Vinson-Trammell Parity Act of 1934, which authorized the Navy to replace all of its average tonnage with new ships.

Vinson took the floor to oppose an amendment providing that "the first and each succeeding alternate vessel" and its equipment were to be built in Government yards or arsenals. Said he: "I know what every one of you is interested in, and I am just as much concerned about it as you. . . . You want work for your Navy yards."

But, said Vinson, the 50-50 formula was too rigid; the President should be free to decide which ships should be built in Navy yards or private yards. In rebuttal, a freshman Republican from Illinois — Everett McKinley Dirksen — called on the House to adopt the 50-50 amendment and "scatter the benefits to all corners of the country." And the House did so.

As finally enacted, the Vinson-Trammell Act included the 50-50 formula, along with a loophole permitting the President to ignore it "in the public interest." And in recent years 75 percent or more of the Navy's funds for ship construction have been spent in private yards.

Not content with this share of the pie, the industry two years ago secured a rider to the defense appropriation bill giving it "at least" 35 percent of the Navy's funds for repair, alteration, and conversion of ships. Previously the Navy's own yards had handled about 75 percent of this work.

As of 1934, Rep. Vinson—now Chairman of the Armed Services Committee — opposed the 65-35 formula for repair work as too rigid. But the House refused to delete it, by a vote of 64-130. And the formula was incorporated in the final law, but with a loophole allowing the Secretary of Defense to set it aside if "inconsistent with the public interest."

Identical language was retained in the defense money bill last year, despite the protests of Congressmen whose districts encompassed the 11 Navy yards—at Portsmouth, N. H.; Kittery, Maine; Boston, Mass.; Brooklyn, N. Y.; Philadelphia, Pa.; Norfolk, Va.; Charleston, S. C.; Bremerton, Wash.; San Francisco, Vallejo and Long Beach, Calif.; and Pearl Harbor, Hawaii.

As Rep. L. Mendel Rivers (D-S.C.) of Charleston testified: "The Philadelphia Navy Yard, the Boston Navy Yard, all of them hang on the brink . . . (because of) this concept of taking away the required work which the fleet vitally needs. . . . We submit this 65-35 is liquidating the naval shipyards."

Rivers, who is in line to succeed Rep. Vinson as Chairman of the Armed Services Committee when the latter retires this year, also bemoaned the "block obsolescence" of the fleet, asserting that "by the simple process of arithmetic the fleet is going out of business" and that "in 20 years we will not have a fleet."

Burma Surgeon Battles For Baptist Hospital

RANGOON, Burma (AP)—At 66, Burma surgeon Gordon S. Seagrave is fighting one of the toughest battles of his long career.

The objective is to keep his Baptist Hospital operating at Annkham, in the hills of northern Burma, in the face of restrictive moves by a government driving toward greater nationalization of the nation's resources.

An edict revoking permits for foreign doctors has affected two of his assistants. The government's $10,000 yearly grant has not been renewed. Drugs and medicines previously brought in free of duty from the United States now are being taxed.

Despite these trials, Dr. Seagrave has told friends he will "fight on to the very end."

Physical Strain
His chief administrative assistant, U Tun Shein, visiting in Rangoon, said Dr. Seagrave finally is showing the stress and strain of his decades of service in Burma.

"He suffers from chronic dysentery and a perpetual sinus complaint," Tun Shein said. "His eyesight is faltering, but he refuses to admit it."

The mission has anxiously watched the government take over two big mission hospitals in Rangoon, and the Red Cross society. The authorities have given no indication of wanting to take over the hospital in Namkham, Tun Shein said, but the threat is apparent.

Dr. Seagrave's two top assistants — Dr. Joseph Newhall, 37, from Florida; and Dr. Owen Silgado, an Indian national — are finding it difficult to renew their permits to stay in Burma.

Born in Burma
Though an American citizen, the drive against foreign doctors has not affected Dr. Seagrave because he was born in Burma.

The hospital, though crude and understaffed by Western standards, is the best-equipped one north of Mandalay. The wards usually are crowded beyond their 300-bed capacity.

The Communist Chinese border at points is less than 50 miles away. Chinese sometimes slip over to bring their sick to the "white magician."

Dr. Seagrave has stopped operating. His assistants call upon him in complicated cases, but he seldom touches the scalpel. "My hands are not as sure and swift as they used to be," he confided to a friend recently.

5-Day Forecast Of Weather
Five-day forecasts for Jan. 23, through Jan. 27:
Middle Atlantic States—Temperatures will average six degrees above normal. Quite warm Thursday and Friday and cooler Saturday through Monday. Rain late Friday or Saturday will total around one-half inch.

Eastern Pennsylvania, New Jersey, Southeastern New York—Temperatures are expected to average 3 to 10 degrees above normal with mild temperatures through Saturday, then cooler Sunday and Monday. Precipitation may total more than a half-inch over northern and central portions and one-quarter to one-half inch over the south. Rain showers are probable late Thursday and again Saturday.

Western Pennsylvania—Temperatures will average about four degrees above normal, resulting from daily readings much above and below normal. Mild through Friday, return to winter cold over the weekend, then moderate again early next week. Precipitation will average nearly a half-inch melted as scattered showers Thursday and Friday and snow flurries Saturday through Monday.

†Based on Manufacturers' Suggested Retail Prices for 2-door hardtop Plymouth Fury, Chevrolet Impala, and Ford Galaxie "500" V-8s, excluding state and local taxes, if any, destination charges, and optional equipment. Prices for Chevrolet and Ford, but not Plymouth, include heater which may be deleted by special order with appropriate price adjustment.

At Plymouth's request, Nationwide Consumer Testing Institute bought and compared comparably equipped V-8 models of Plymouth Fury, Chevrolet Impala, and Ford Galaxie "500". They set up a program of ten tests, hired professional drivers, made the rules, and supervised the entire competition. The results are in the chart.

Just Between Us —

—By Bobby Westbrook

There is a certain bovine character about many of these days. At least there is around ours, where reporters trying to kick the smoking habit have taken to chewing gum as a cow to its cud, and the rhythm of masticating jaws sort of keeps pace with the rhythm of the typewriter keys.

The only problem seems to be that they haven't taken over the cow's placid disposition along with its cud. There seems to be more of the nature of a bull pawing the ground and ready to bellow.

Between women trying to stick to their post-holiday diet and men trying not to smoke, the non-reformer must walk softly and refrain from flaunting either his calories or his cigarette lighter.

And between the March of Dimes workers and the Heart Fund volunteers the non-goodies had better not go nagging about their spare time either. By virtue of necessity this week, I have turned into a non-meeting-attendee and consequently missed some excellent first hand information.

Like the reactions of the Walters' to Spain at the DAR, for instance; which their audience found most enlightening, and Dr. Mary Hunsicker's talk on dermatology at the Hospital Aux. meeting, I did hear a discussion on what Dr. Mary said, including a warning against bathing — of both the sun and water variety.

It is always remarkable to me how many of the notions we discarded as 'old-fogey' on the part of our parents are re-advanced, complete with scientific proof, for our children. Take sun-bathing for instance, and how we laughed at the idea of parasols and sunbonnets, and religiously baked our babies, summer and winter, according to the instructions of Government Bulletin No. whatever it was that preceded Dr. Spock.

Nor there is a proven link between sun bathing and skin cancer, Dr. Mary said. And the joke about our grandparents "taking a bath every Saturday night whether they needed it or not," isn't so funny.

A bath once a week in the winter should be plenty, Dr. Mary says firmly, pointing to all the dry-skin problems plaguing today's winter-logged, soap-sodden bath-a-day addicts.

One thing that never changes though is the old family hold-back routine. The Hamilton PTA served so many spaghetti suppers, that the committee ended up having no meat halls.

Better Cobwebs In House Than In Mother's Mind

By Roberta Fleming Roesch
I agree that young mothers need to keep their minds alive as much as anyone else," says an emphatic young mother who's willing to set us straight. "But at the same time I'd like you to know there simply isn't time."

On The Run
"In my case—and I'm only one example—I'm on the run 23 hours a day cleaning and picking up the house, doing the washing and ironing and minding two young toddlers."

"In addition, I constantly have to cope with all kinds of interruptions like putting on snow suits when the boys want 'Out' and removing them five minutes later when they hang at the door for 'In'."

"With all this, I want you to know that people who think young mothers have any time for their improving minds have no conception whatever of what it's like to stay at home with a house and children all day."

"I've wanted to write you a long, long time to set you straight on this."

Known From Experience
Frankly, we've known a long, long time—and from experience, too—that days on the home front with toddlers don't leave lots of time for one's mind!

As physical chores go up-up-up, your mental chores go down. And lots of your days are the same kind of days, while you view spilled milk and jam-splattered bibs, along with your other work. For you, the hours to give to your mind are limited, we know.

Yet some women seem to find the time—as they watch their children grow—to learn instead of vegetate. In spite of the many demands on them.

World's Best Mothers
There are the world's best mothers, too, as far as we're concerned, because, in addition

March Of Dimes Physician Advises Mothers-to-Be

By Virginia Appgar, M. D.
Director, Division of Congenital Malformations
March of Dimes

The approach of the new year is a traditional time for looking back, taking stock and planning ahead. For me, some of the most interesting findings during the past year revolved around these questions:

What do we know about preventing birth defects, a problem as old as time?

Are there any specific rules we can give a woman who is pregnant?

What do we now know that we didn't know before?

Fortunately, the past year has been productive. We do know more than we ever knew before about preventing birth defects. And while there still is much we don't know, we can give a pregnant woman some rules to follow.

Since 1958, The National Foundation—March of Dimes, which was responsible for the development of the Salk and Sabin polio vaccines, has been searching for the causes and preventives of birth defects.

March of Dimes Conference
One of the highlights in this research area was the Second International Conference on Congenital Malformations, sponsored by The National Foundation, held in New York City during the past year.

Here, 1,400 medical people from 22 countries met to report their latest findings in the field of birth defects, and to talk with their colleagues in allied fields about causes and possible preventives. Also discussed were projects involving basic research, which we need for a foundation upon which to build theories about causes and preventives.

One of the most interesting speakers was Dr. Widukind Lenz, a West German geneticist on the staff of Hamburg University. It was Dr. Lenz who first connected the recent serious outbreak of birth defects in his country to the sedative thalidomide.

According to Dr. Lenz, "Formerly, many human biologists, taking a normal uterine environment for granted, used to attribute almost every malformation to heredity."

Chemicals Have Effect
However, he says, there is a need for a change in this type of thinking, because "the chemical environment of man has greatly changed in recent decades due to the introduction of many chemicals. Some of these have been devised with the special purpose to block chemical reactions in man, animals, plants or unicellular organisms."

Therefore, this new medical trend produces this advice to a pregnant woman:

"At present, any woman who is in the first few months of pregnancy, or is uncertain as to whether or not she is pregnant, the feelings of the reader who wrote today.

Our answer to that is a stock one, proved by experience, too. And it's always the same: It's "Nap Time" — or "You Time" — to save for you!

We know how some mothers argue this isn't the time for their minds since too many children want to be "In" in the hours they need to be "In." But who's the boss? And resting won't harm your tots!

Which Cobwebs
We also know, as a woman, how cleaning rears its head, every time a mother has some time alone. But when it's either the cobwebs in your mind or the cobwebs in your house, we're all for putting your previous mind first and settling for a book.

GOP Council Will Revise Its By-Laws

Marshall's Creek — The executive board of the Monroe Council of Republican Women had 14 of 16 members present for the meeting at the home of Mrs. Helen Hansen this week.

Mrs. John Gebbie presided at the meeting when members discussed revising the by-laws to bring them into line with those of the state organization. Mrs. Foster Minnich was named chairman of the by-laws committee which also includes Mrs. Eli Travis, Mrs. Carl Wagner, Mrs. T. E. Terrell, Mrs. Mary Emma Garcia, Mrs. Jeannette Davis.

In other business, the council discussed its part in promoting the Lincoln Day Dinner. Mrs. Edgar Powell gave the secretary's report.

Lunch of sandwiches, cookies, ice cream, cake, tea and coffee was served from a table decorated with a centerpiece of white mums. Mrs. Gebbie took pictures of the group.

The next meeting of the executive board will be held at the Penn-Stroud Hotel on Feb. 11.

Stroud Club Style Show At Ski Run

Stroudsburg — The Fashion Show to be sponsored by project team 2 of the Stroud Community Woman's Club is the next major project of the club and was stressed at their January meeting at the YMCA in Stroudsburg.

Fashions will be provided by Frances Burrows and the show will be held Feb. 11 at Camelback Ski Lodge. June Hart, co-chairman, reported on details.

A thrift sale on March 18 is the offering of project team 3, Elaine Martin, chairman, asked members to gather articles for the sale.

Project team 1 reported on its project, the recent successful Hawaiian Luau.

Announcement was made of the executive board meeting to be held Jan. 23 at the YMCA.

Mrs. Robert Nichols as guest speaker spoke on "Teaching Citizenship Responsibility Through the League of Women Voters."

Refreshments were served by Helen Mench and Doris Kieley, co-chairmen, and their committee: Ella Mae Hardenstine, Eleanor Heimbach, Marjorie Hunt, Jeanne Kirk, Elaine Martin, Marion Meissner and Rose Morgan.

DeMolay To Be Dinner Guests

Stroudsburg — Members of the Pocono Mountains Chapter, Order of DeMolay will be honored at a covered dish supper on Monday, Jan. 21 prepared by the Mother's Circle. The dinner, originally planned for Jan. 13 but postponed because of the snowstorm, will be held at the Stroudsburg Masonic building.

Members may bring any boys whom you have reason to see that you are pregnant, or that you think you are pregnant. This information is vital in the case of X-rays or fluoroscopy, which, during the early months of pregnancy, might harm the unborn child. If these procedures can be postponed until later, your doctor will do so.

Never knowingly expose yourself to German measles, or to any other infectious disease when pregnant.

Follow the diet your doctor prescribes. Don't take extra vitamin pills or any other fancy vitamin supplements without checking with your doctor.

Know your Rh-factor blood type, and your husband's. Tell your doctor.

Inform any other doctor whom you have reason to see that you are pregnant, or that you think you are pregnant.

Following the dinner there will be a public installation of officers at 7:30 with the public invited. All DeMolay members are urged to attend.

Card Party At Tannersville
Tannersville — A card party will be held by the Elsie Longacre Rebekah Lodge on Wednesday, Jan. 29 at 8 p.m. at the Tannersville Lodge Hall.

Plans for the party were made at the January lodge meeting. Mrs. Francis Amelung, noble grand, asked members to call friends and guests for the party. Those wishing to may bring their own cards.

To be honored are Ella Schaller, Irene Hartley, Estelle Reid, Peter Allan, Theodore Ace and Mitchell Brush.

Tobyhanna — The new officers of the Ladies Aux. of the Coaldough Twp. Volunteer Fire Co. presided at the January 21 meeting at the firehouse. Installed at a recent dinner dance of the fire company and auxiliary were:

Mrs. Arlene Knecht, president; Mrs. Mae Taylor, vice president; Mrs. Rose Cardozo, secretary; Mrs. Anna May Marsh, financial secretary; and Mrs. Julia Oakey, treasurer.

Mrs. Knecht appointed the following committee chairmen; hospitality, Mrs. Betty Fair-service and Miss Augusta Frank; sunshine, Mrs. Laurel Marsh and Mrs. Lara Pope; refreshments, Mrs. Julia Regan and Mrs. Maxine Kelly, publicity, Mrs. Fair-service.

Mrs. Genevieve Paculli and Mrs. Margary Roundtree and Mrs. Vera Katchumere are new members.

Morey PTA Follow-up On Program

Stroudsburg — Concern for the problems involved in special education for handicapped children prompted the Morey School Parent-Teachers Assn. to schedule a continuation of the subject in April.

Mrs. Mary Gearhart, intermediate special education teacher at the Morey School, led the informal discussion on the subject at the January meeting stressing the problems facing both parents and teachers. A special film on the problems, care and teaching of special education children were shown.

Robert Widmer, Morey PTA president, announced that Mrs. Doris Barry's third grade class was the winner of the membership contest.

Others who assisted at the meeting were Mrs. John Parker, Mrs. Calvin Schoch, Mrs. Paul Lim, and Mrs. William Brown, all members of the PTA executive board; and Mrs. Robert Harvey, chairman of the hostess committee and Mrs. Charles Eden, hospitality chairman.

PTA Supper Successful

Saylorsburg—The Hamilton Parent-Teachers Assn. served 275 dinners at the third annual spaghetti supper held Saturday night at the Saylorsburg fire-hall.

Mrs. Janet Howell was chairman of the supper committee.

Eileen Rinker To Be Bride On Saturday

Henryville — Mr. and Mrs. George Rinker of Henryville announce the approaching marriage of their daughter, Eileen Louise, to Adrian C. Rose, son of Mr. and Mrs. Calvin Rose of Greentown.

They will be married on Saturday at 2 p.m. at the Canadensis Methodist Church.

A reception will be held at the Tannersville firehall. Friends and relatives are invited.

Arlington PTA Studies Speech Film

Arlington Heights—The role of the family in good speaking habits was dramatized in a film, "The Family Circle" shown at the meeting of the Arlington Heights Parent-Teachers Assn. this week at the school.

John Haddon, speech therapist for the Stroud Union School District, showed the film and also answered the questions which it raised.

At the business meeting plans were made for a penny supper to be served April 18. Mrs. William Eyer will be chairman and Mrs. Roy Hughes assistant chairman.

The attendance award went to the second grade.

Pocono Art Center Aides Set Up New Meet With ARA

TANNERSVILLE — Officials of the Pocono Art Center will hold another meeting with representatives of the Area Redevelopment Administration in an effort to determine if the center's proposed projects will qualify for federal assistance.

Art center officials meet with Harold Williams, deputy administrator of the ARA, at the Camelback Ski Resort near Tannersville Tuesday.

Mrs. Marcia Clapp DeRocco, who has headed the center's drive to raise $500,000 for a cultural center, said, "We had a very nice meeting at Camelback on Tuesday and everything seems favorable at this time."

Also Attend

Dr. Charlotte Jordan and Robert Davenport, other center officials, also attended the meeting.

Mrs. DeRocco reported that John J. Curran, ARA field coordinator, will come to Stroudsburg next week to discuss federal aid for the center's cultural center.

Administrator Williams was at Camelback as part of a two-day tour through ARA-sponsored projects in Northeastern Pennsylvania.

Ken Nicoll, Camelback's resident manager, said Williams said the operation at Camelback was "great." Nicoll said Camelback has done "real well" in the last five weeks.

The ARA approved a $316,000 loan for Camelback to help construct the ski facility.

Capital Campus For Lynda Bird

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson's 19-year-old daughter, Lynda Bird, has enrolled for the spring term at George Washington University here along with a University of Texas roommate.

A White House spokesman said Sunday that Lynda has invited her roommate and close friend, Warrie Lynn Smith of San Antonio, to live at the White House while attending George Washington.

Shortway Road Plans Progress

WILLIAMSPORT — Keystone Shortway Assn. officials yesterday said they are hopeful 61 miles of the Shortway will be open to traffic by mid-1964.

At present there is 34.2 miles of the Shortway open to traffic, and six additional segments, totaling 27 miles, were put under construction during 1961 and 1962.

Officials say it is highly probable that 61 miles can be ready for World's Fair motorists by the middle of 1964.

Fletcher Christian, nine other sailors from the "Bounty" and 19 Polynesians left Tahiti in 1789 secretly to colonize Pitcairn Island. The initial settlement has grown to more than 30.

There are 3.7 million independent producers in United States agriculture.

The association will publish folders telling motorists traveling east to the World's Fair, explaining the mileage "that can be saved by traveling the sections of the shortway open to traffic."

In the Monroe-Luzerne County area the crossing of the Lehigh River at White Haven will be one of the most costly sections of the Shortway, the association said. Several plans for the high bridge and its approaches have been submitted to the Bureau of Public Roads in Washington.

$1,650 Mortgage Reported On Area Church's Edifice

CANADENSIS Members of the congregation of the Canadensis Moravian Church were told that the mortgage on the church edifice is $1,650 by Earl S. Rose treasurer of the board of trustees, at the annual council meeting Monday night.

The sum, if paid during the fiscal year, would put the congregation one year ahead of original 10-year mortgage period. The church was dedicated July 22, 1955.

Annual reports were presented on the life of the church during 1963.

The men will be formally installed at ceremonies during the worship service Sunday 10:45 a.m.

Grange To Hold Annual Supper

STERLING — With one eye on the weather, Community Grange 2036 has set Jan. 25 as the date for the annual pancake supper to begin at the grange hall at 5 p.m.

For the past several years, the pancake supper and the "big snow" date of the year have coincided. However, with a snowfall of 29 inches here a little more than a week ago, the grangers are confident that this year will be different!

The same, however, will be the menu for the supper: pancakes, homemade sausage and scrapple, and Pocono Mountain maple syrup, all made by grange members.

Extra sausage and scrapple will be on sale after the supper, the members announced. And everybody's welcome!

Blitz Post Units Plan Joint Parley

MOUNTAINHOME — Members of the Evans Blitz American Legion Post 922 will meet in a joint session with the Auxiliary Unit Feb. 3 at the home of Mrs. Peg Lewis, Legion Drive, Mountainhome, 8 p.m.

The meeting was announced by Mrs. Lydia Christenson, president of the unit at a recent meeting held at Mrs. Lewis' home.

During the business session, it was reported that a total of $252 had been used to aid the Wilkes - Barre Veterans Administration Hospital, and on the local level for Christmas Cheer and child welfare.

Mrs. Blanche Evans, chairman of the Christmas party, reported to the 13 members attending that the event was a success.

Plans for the July carnival to be held at the Veterans' Hospital, were made. Members voted to purchase material for aprons and fancy work which will be offered as the unit's project.

The meeting was closed with Mrs. Christenson reading the tribute to the late John F. Kennedy, "Letter From Heaven."

Indian totem poles served as coats of arms, banners, storybooks — even as notices of unpaid debts. Totem carving became a fine art when Europeans gave northwest coastal Indians their first steel tools.

Methodist Church Probes Move In Christian Mission

BUCK HILL FALLS — The Methodist Church may be at the beginning of a "vital new thrust in the Christian mission" as the result of a four-year study program as to what the church's mission is in the 1960s, the chief Methodist missionary education executive said yesterday.

Making his annual report to the Methodist Board of Missions, the Rev. Dr. Gerald L. Clapsaddle said that the Board, Clapsaddle said, the theological basis of the Christian mission and how to carry out the mission in a changing world.

"The 'Our Mission Today' program has represented a vigorous effort to confront the people in Methodist churches with some of the hard realities of the present situation in regard to the mission of the church," Dr. Clapsaddle said.

Dr. Clapsaddle, of New York, is the general secretary of the Board's Joint Section of Education and Cultivation. He reported to 600 persons attending the

Understanding, Not Ignorance Aid To Homosexual Problem

(EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the ninth in a series of ten articles condensed from the new book "Ann Landers Talks To Teen-Agers About Sex." Copyright 1963 by Prentice-Hall, Inc.)

By Ann Landers

The subject of homosexuality is clearly a hot potato. Why include this hot potato in a book for teen-agers? Because my mail tells me that thousands of teen-agers are either abysmally ignorant or have wildly cockeyed notions about the subject. They need constructive information, but they don't know where to get it. Many teen-agers who write to me expressing the fear that they might be homosexual say they would "rather die" than discuss the "problem with someone they know."

In my search for background material I found pitifully little that has been written in terms of a teen-ager could understand. In fact, I found pitifully little written in terms an adult could understand — unless he happened to be a psychiatrist. This chapter, of course, is no scholarly study. I am neither physician nor psychiatrist. But I do think I can help substitute dangerous ignorance with a measure of understanding. And I hope to dispel some of the anxieties resulting from a problem which too long has been swept under the rug.

Experts Disagree
I have read a bale of material by the experts — analysts, psychiatrists, physicians, sociologists and criminologists. The only point on which all the experts seem to agree is that there are massive disagreements among the experts. The teen-agers who write to me seeking information and counsel on homosexuality are usually between 14 and 19 years of age. Sometimes they write about a friend they suspect is "a little queer." Or they may be concerned about a member of the family who "doesn't seem quite right." But usually they write about themselves.

About 70 percent of the letters come from boys. Most of the boys who write are tortured with guilt and self-hatred. They live on the razor's edge, terrified that someone may learn they aren't "like everybody else."

Before we go further perhaps we should define our terms. What is a homosexual? A homosexual is a male or female who desires, physically, members of his own sex. A female homosexual is called a Lesbian.

Ancient Practice
Twenty-four hundred years ago homosexuality was widely practiced among the Greeks and Romans. Today there is a popular belief that homosexuality contributed, in a very important way, to the decline of both societies.

The historians say not so. They tell us, instead, that in the Greek and Roman cultures of that era, women were social and intellectual inferiors — their role was that of housekeeper and childbearer.

Passionate friendships among men were considered normal. Women were not "good enough" or "sufficiently intelligent" to merit intimate relationships. Not until the Christian era was homosexuality looked upon as immoral in Western civilization.

Do all homosexuals carry out sexual procedures? No. Some homosexuals are too inhibited or fearful of the consequences.

Is it possible to tell if a person is a homosexual by looking at him? No. In some instances an overt homosexual can be identified at a glance, but generally it is not possible to make the judgment by observation.

What Cause?
And now the big question: What causes homosexuality? It is on this point that the experts collide. A few authorities insist that a homosexual is a person who was "born wrong" — that he is a biological accident with a defective glandular system and an improper hormone balance.

In support of this theory they give us Exhibit A: the homosexual male with the high-pitched, girlish voice, the beardless face and the delicate features; and Exhibit B: the Lesbian with the deep voice, the masculine features and excessive hair on the face, arms and legs.

"The evidence is incontestable," these experts insist. "Homosexuals are born wrong." The view which is finding more and more acceptance is that homosexuality is a gross symptom of a serious psychological disturbance. The specialists who hold this view insist that the vast majority of homosexuals are organically normal. They do not discount, however, the possibility that a small percentage of homosexuality is due to physical defects at birth.

Rebuttal
In rebuttal to Exhibit A and Exhibit B (those homosexuals who do indeed have glandular deficiencies and an improper hormone balance), the second group of experts points to normal males with high-pitched voices, beardless faces and effeminate features. They also point to normal females who have deep voices, masculine features and excessive hair growth. These individuals, in spite of their glandular and hormone problems, are emotionally healthy and lead normal sex lives.

A roof of Norfolk reeds, the most durable thatching, costs up to $1,120, but it will last 60 to 80 years if maintained properly. Devon reed remains in fact for 25 to 40 years, wheat straw 10 to 20.

From the debate one point, at least, emerges: No one knows why the emotional problems of one child may lead him to excessive thumb-sucking or prolonged bed-wetting, while another child's emotional problems may turn him into a homosexual.

All human beings go through stages when they prefer the company of members of their own sex — and it's perfectly natural. Very young children play together indiscriminately.

By the time a youngster reaches six or seven years of age he usually prefers companions of his own sex. This preference may continue until high school age, varying with the individual.

Normal Stages
It is not uncommon to see 11- and 12-year-old girls holding hands or with arms around one another as they walk down the street. Girls often dance together, talk on the telephone endlessly and spend weekends in each other's homes. This is normal. These girls do not have sexual desires for one another. What they feel is a sense of companionship.

At about the age 11 or 12, girls begin to take an interest in boys. Boys usually begin to notice girls at about 14 or 15. Some boys are late starters, however, and have no interest in girls until they are 17 or even 18.

At this point I would like to make a distinction between homosexuals and child-molesters. Many adults do not know the difference.

It is not true that all homosexuals are child-molesters or that they are constantly making attempts to "ruin" young boys by introducing them to their way of life.

Most homosexuals stick closely to their own circle of friends and mind their own business. Child-molesters are psychopathic personalities, a serious threat to society and they should be institutionalized and treated.

Home Hangouts
Almost every boy, by the time he has reached 13 years of age, has been approached by a homosexual. Homosexuals often loiter around parks, public toilets and places where boys are apt to gather. If such an approach is made all that need be said is, "I'm not interested," then leave the premises at once. There is no need for violence, anger or shame.

I've had many letters from boys who are filled with fear because a number of homosexuals have made passes at them. They are afraid something must be wrong with them or they would not attract "queers." Their fears are groundless. While something is drastically wrong with the person who makes the pass, nothing is wrong with them.

And now, what can be done to set the homosexual on the track of normality? First, let's not assume that all homosexuals want to be set on the track. Many homosexuals are content as they are and have no wish to change. They are not a problem to society or to themselves.

Most homosexuals, however, yearn to be normal. And these are the ones whose heartbreaking letters cross my desk daily. Twisted and sick, through no fault of their own, they want desperately to be "like everyone else."

Adjustment Needed
What can be done for the homosexual who wants to be normal? Very little in the way of a "cure" but a great deal in terms of adjustment. Psychiatric therapy can, in most cases, give the homosexual some understanding and insight into his problem.

It can help him adjust to his condition and accept himself as he is. Talking about a problem with a doctor often can be tremendously helpful. The chances for a complete cure are slim. An optimistic estimate is that only about four out of one hundred can be made heterosexual — and then only with concentrated therapy. The chances are better, of course, if the homosexual seeks professional help in his early teens and is willing and able (and financially capable) to undertake intensive therapy.

To those of you who are reading this chapter for information only, and not because you are seeking help for yourselves, I would like to leave this thought:

Be thankful you have been blessed with healthy, normal sex drives, and remember that not all boys and girls are so fortunate. When you encounter people who are "different," remember that their lives are probably unbelievably difficult and that they are faced with the enormous problem of adjustment. You can help by understanding.

Pipher Visions Renovated Monroe

By Bob Clark
Daily Record Managing Editor

(First of a special series on the programs and proposals of the new Monroe County board of commissioners.)

STROUDSBURG — Is Stuart Pipher, Monroe County's new county commissioner the Pocono Mountains modern day version of Sir Galahad?

If the youngest member of the county's most powerful public office attains the goals he has set for himself, county residents will be calling him a blessing in disguise.

Pipher, long on ideals but short on experience, has set a fast pace for his self-tagged "blueprint for progress."

It has been only a few short weeks since Pipher joined Stanley Italer, incumbent, and John Price, newly-elected, on the county governing board.

However, Pipher, with the self-styled purity and ambition of Galahad has put into motion ambitious practices that promise a lively four years.

White Elephants? Pipher said, "I want to know everything."

"If we are carrying white elephants then we must get rid of them. If some of our programs are necessary and serve a definite purpose for the masses then we should administer them better."

The Democrat who actually followed a lone wolf trail in seeking the commissionership post last fall isn't going to let anything stand in his way.

"Our get-togethers on Mondays and Thursdays each week are not for the purpose of shooting the bull. We have plenty of work to do and I am pressing continually that we do it," he said.

Reactivates Commission

"We are going forward," he emphasized. Take, for example, the reactivation of the county planning commission. We (the commissioners) want the county's best minds on this commission.

We want to educate the people with the assets and pitfalls of planning and zoning. Then, and only then, will we offer

Pays Bet In Sausage

MILAN, Italy (AP) — Pork shop owner Pietro Rancati has paid off one of the longest soccer bets in Milan history—150 feet of sausage.

He bet 25 of his customers 6 feet of sausage each against one bottle of sparkling wine that his favorite team, Internazionale di Milano, would beat Milan of Milan in their annual home-field game last Sunday. Milan beat Inter 2-0.

the planning and zoning program on a referendum.

Pipher can't see planning and zoning up for a vote for at least a year and a half.

"This is a program you cannot hurry. Everyone should know every phase of it before we go ahead on any full scale movement," he said.

Stuart Pipher

The white elephant? Right now, Pipher is concerned about the Pocono Mountains Airport at Mt. Pocono.

"The county has been pouring money into this project, but so far I haven't seen any return on the investment," he said.

Airport Could Be Issue

"We intend to probe the situation and request that one member of the county commissioners be appointed to the Airport Authority," said Monroe County's new idea man.

The man who was defeated in his first try for a county public office a few short years ago lists other ways the county commissioners can help improve the "vitality and economy" of the county.

He said Pocono Mountains Industries, Inc., a tentacle of the Pocono Mountains Chamber of Commerce, "has untapped potential" and can reach greater heights.

"We (the commissioners) want to further their efforts," Pipher pointed out.

County And Unemployment

Pipher wants the commissioners to act as liaison officers between the county and the local employment office.

"The Pennsylvania State Employment Office Service's concern for employment is our concern too," he remarked.

The newest voice in the political world plans to lead a fight to strengthen Monroe County's tax structure.

"We have an obsolete system prevailing on the occupation tax. For example, all types of engineers are assessed a certain figure but one engineer may be earning only $5,000, while another is in the $20,000 racket. Yet, both pay the same tax."

"It isn't fair," he commented.

Vocational School

The 38-year-old commissioner who lives in Pocono Twp. is pushing for a vocational school.

"We need a school of this type to turn out skilled craftsmen to insure incoming firms and businesses that we have their labor needs in the Poconos," Pipher said.

Pipher is also high on stepped-up mental health and aid for the handicapped programs in Monroe County. He believes the county must work hand-in-hand with the physically, mentally and socially handicapped.

Other Problems

Other problems Pipher plans to come face to face with in the near future are:

Child Welfare Program when it comes the county's "baby" via a state mandate.

Surplus food, determining the eligibility of the 2,600 present-day recipients.

A sound fire school that heretofore was supported financially by the county.

A "go-go" playground and recreational program revolving around the county park commission.

A new name — Pipher would like one with dignity — for the county home at Kellersville.

On Tocks Team

Pipher also makes it emphatic that he would like to see Tocks Island project get off the ground "real soon."

"I don't want a series of little dams, either," he exclaimed.

"One dam unveiling the vast potential will serve the purpose well. I have committed myself to keeping in contact with Rep. Fred B. Rooney (Monroe's congressman) and hoping he can move the project along."

Pipher prophesies, "We cannot miss economically or recreationally if Tocks becomes a reality."

The former head of the Central Labor Union doesn't plan to let the grass grow under his feet during the next four years.

"I know we have a lot of work to do. My colleagues—Rader and Price — and myself have dedicated ourselves to making Monroe a county the people can be proud of."

Next: Pipher the individual.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Panama's break with the United States may cost that country much—but perhaps not all—of its $21 million U.S. aid program, officials said today.

The aid operations in the country have been suspended for all practical purposes because of the withdrawal of U.S. personnel into the Canal Zone. The Johnson administration is considering whether to make special arrangements to resume work on some projects or to cut off the entire program until normal diplomatic relations are restored.

Itemizing Deductions Profitable

Income Tax Series IV:

EDITOR'S NOTE — You may be able to save yourself unnecessary expense by becoming familiar with the deductions which can be itemized on your return for 1963 income. Here are some of the items which can be deducted from your tax, fourth in a series of five articles.

By ADREN COOPER

About 40 per cent of the nation's taxpayers find it profitable to itemize their deductions rather than take the standard deduction.

If your income is less than $5,000, and you decide to take the standard deduction, you must use the tax table which automatically allows about 10 per cent for the deduction.

For returns in the above $5,000 class, the taxpayer subtracts the 10 per cent and then determines his tax from the three tax rate schedules listed in the instructions. A single person, or a couple filing jointly, cannot deduct more than $1,000 and a married person filing separately is limited to a $500 deduction.

There is space for listing individual deductions on Page 2 of Form 1040, and it will be to your advantage to do so if the items total more than the amount you are permitted under the standard deduction.

You'll probably find that your deductions run more than 10 per cent of your income if you are making payments on a large mortgage on your house; if you paid a substantial amount in state taxes; if you paid out a large amount for medical or dental bills; or if you had certain types of losses or other extraordinary expenses.

May Deduct

You may deduct: interest paid on a home mortgage, auto or personal loan, or any non-business loan; most state taxes; medical and dental expenses which exceed 3 per cent of your income (drugs are included in medical expenses only to the extent they exceed 1 per cent of your income);

Contributions to church, educational, scientific, literary or charitable organizations;

Some employee expenses, such as dues to a professional society or a union, or small tools;

Damage from wind, storm, fire, etc., or loss from a theft.

Contributions ordinarily may not exceed 20 per cent, and in some cases 30 per cent, of your income. You cannot deduct gifts to an individual, or to a political organization. You can deduct the fair market value of clothing or other items you contribute to a non-profit organization.

It is helpful to get an appraisal of the property from the recipient organization.

In determining how much medical and dental expense you can deduct, take 1 per cent of your income as shown on Line 9, Page 1 of the return and subtract it from the total spent on drugs and medicines. Add the remainder to the total spent on medical and dental bills and then subtract 3 per cent of your income.

Space For Computation

There is space for this computation on Page 2 of 1040. These rules are more relaxed for a taxpayer over 65.

If there is not enough room on the form for all your items, put them on a separate sheet and attach it to your return.

If you have difficulty in determining the exact amount of interest you paid on an installment debt, you can use the formula outlined in "Your Federal Income Tax," a 40-cent booklet published by the Internal Revenue Service.

In compiling deductible taxes, don't overlook state income taxes, city earnings taxes, gasoline taxes, sales taxes, real estate, personal property, and in many states alcohol and tobacco taxes. Federal taxes are not deductible.

You should keep sufficient records to prove the deductions you claim.

The following nondeductible items, according to the IRS, are frequently listed erroneously by taxpayers on Page 2 of Form 1040:

Funeral expenses, water taxes, dog licenses, hunting and fishing licenses, Social Security taxes, life insurance premiums, fines, penalties, and federal excise taxes on such items as jewelry, tires, gasoline, furs and cosmetics.

A woman may deduct the expenses of caring for a disabled dependent or a dependent child under 12 if such expense is necessary for the woman to seek, or hold, a job. An example of this type of expense would be pay for a babysitter or tuition for a boarding school or nursing school.

A man who is widowed, divorced or legally separated from his wife is eligible for this deduction; a woman is eligible regardless of whether she is single, married, widowed, divorced or deserted.

The deduction may not exceed $600.

Cy Barrett Says

Amateur Thieves

By Cyrus Barrett, Jr.

DEAR CY: While shopping in a local supermarket, I saw a prominent matron stick some items into the pocket of her expensive coat. You can imagine my surprise when, from my position in the checkout line, I noted she didn't offer to pay for the merchandise. I told the manager, who was polite, but uninterested. He said, "She's one of our richest customers, so forget it. It's the professionals and kids who give us a hard time on pilfering." I still say I saw this woman steal!

MRS. HAMMOND

DEAR MRS. HAMMOND: If the store manager truthfully thinks as he talks, he has sinned between his shoulders. He may know you are correct and prefer to wait until he can catch the well-heeled culprit red-handed. With the rise of the self-service merchandising, shoplifting has become a growth industry. According to an FBI report, pilfering, up to the last quarter of 1963, increased 10 per cent over the same period in 1962.

Norman M. Kiven, president of Norman Industries, a leading maker of theft prevention devices, tells me, "Less than 6 per cent of in-store stealing is carried out by persons who live by their dishonesty. Ninety per cent of this stealing is done by housewives, because they do over 90% of the shopping."

In commenting on McCrory's variety stores and women's apparel shops, the "Wall Street Journal" quoted Meshulam Riklis, chairman of the board, as follows: "In 1962 the division's 'shrinkage factor' — the percentage of goods sold that are lost to pilferage, shoplifting or disappearance — rose to an average 3.08 per cent from 1.85 per cent. Since this wasn't apparent until year-end inventory-taking, McCrory suffered an unexpected 3 million dollar loss overnight."

CY

DEAR CY: Your column is thoroughly interesting and enjoyable. I am a housewife and mother of five youngsters. I did not complete college prior to marriage and with my large household find thoughts of finishing college impractical. I would like to make plans now for the day when my children are in school. In your opinion, is real estate a practical field for a woman? There are extension courses in real estate (leading to certification) available through the local university. I enjoy meeting people and participate in community activities.

ANGIE L.

DEAR ANGIE: You sound like an excellent candidate for a real estate career! And a real estate career is a woman's field. Over 120,000 girls can't be wrong. Take the course and study the classics, find advertising pages of your newspaper. You'll find, as with any business that can be studied through want ads, you will soon become conversant with values, trends, and opportunities.

CY

DEAR CY: The nonsense I take from a co-worker I shall call Molly M. has me waking at night in a cold sweat. We are computer programmers at a large insurance company. After the executives have decided what the computers shall do, we set up (program) the machines to carry out the tasks. One of the computers is larger than the others and Molly plays-acts like it is a living, breathing mechanical brain. She always speaks of it as "he." When things are rolling, she makes the remark, "Now, he is enjoying his lunch." This nonsense aggravates me, but I have to complain to company officials. What shall I do?

KATHERINE A.

DEAR KATE: Program your emotions. Control them rigidly until you can feed Molly to the computer.

Horoscope

By FRANCIS DRAKE

Thursday, January 23, 1964

If you happen to get a late start, pick up your pace as you go along. Your mental functions and eagerness of comprehension should be stimulated now.

January 21 to April 21 (Taurus) — The Venus, suspicious, encourages artistic pursuits, romance, domestic interests. Day spells action, determination, aggressiveness. P.D. 9.

May 22 to June 21 (Gemini) — Fair-weather in part, but day requires more effort, steady application of your skills and knowledge. Cooperation with right forces vital. As is strength of conviction.

June 22 to July 23 (Cancer) — You can make a bright new place for yourself with a little more diligence and a graceful demeanor. Use a practical arena for trying new ideas before putting them into effect.

July 24 to August 23 (Leo) — Personal development must accompany all other endeavors. The well-rounded Leo can stride a head with disdignation. Take action in stride, making better ways to push forward promptly.

August 24 to September 23 (Virgo) — If you let things slide, you will become "lumpy" when results are not as desired. Read the signals and rules early, and keep your activity even. Curb over-aggressiveness.

September 24 to October 23 (Libra) — Step back a foot from competition that is working overtime. The extra try will be worth it. Look out for "drip" that attracts, but really don't mix with it.

October 24 to November 23 (Scorpio) — Handle routine with minor. Don't be distracted by non-essentials. Manoeuvre drastically in decisive manner. December 24 (Sagittarius) — Jupiter influences now suggest that you get a tight hold on reins and direct with firmness, also willingness to be taught a new trick or method.

December 24 to January 23 (Capricorn) — Separate fact from fiction precisely; waste no time regarding duties, and where less extra would distract, be strict about detaching them. Keep day shipshape.

January 24 to February 19 (Aquarius) — Others are observing some following you. Your best bet forward. Stress vital points, but no exaggerating or cutting corners. You short.

February 20 to March 20 (Pisces) — Your zeal and emotion should bring fine gains and a large share of happiness, but do not overdo yourself. Meet new situations with logic.

"A" JUNE TODAY are endowed with a fine imagination and great versatility. Your mind roams far and wide, often with amazing accuracy, because you are always taking in knowledge and observing. When you act, it comes with precision and a quality of adaptability that is outstanding. You can conquer or out-think with skill and logic. If you don't capsize your own boat by oversteering, or over-sailing, the mysterious sea is shallow. Both the storied rushing, and the calm, substantial, and the date of the sun, the sun, the sun.

Lack Of Light Stunts Seedlings

STARTING SEED—One of the big problems of starting seed indoors is preventing spindliness of seedlings. This is usually due to a lack of light indoors. Light is not necessary for germinating (starting) seed, but once the seed has sprouted, they must be in full light or they'll stretch and bend toward it.

Usually an attic window or a bright west window is fine for starting seed. Temperature is important, too. Most seeds start best in a temperature of 72 degs. or even higher, but after they are up you should reduce the temperature as the seedlings will be soft and spindly.

One of the biggest mistakes home gardeners make is to start seed in the wrong mixture. Seeds do not need a rich soil for germination. In fact they don't need any soil at all. Florists use a soil substitute, such as a half and half mixture of sand and peat moss, or sand and peat moss with either perlite or vermiculite added.

These materials are light and disease-free. If you start seed in soil scooped up from the garden or nearby manure pile, you're asking for failure.

Such soils must be lightened up by adding sand or one of the above materials and since most garden soils are loaded with various soil organisms, you'll have to sterilize such soils before seed is sowed. Next week we'll mention various ways to kill harmful organisms found in soils.

STRAWBERRIES—One reason why strawberries are raised by so many homeowners is their early fruit habit. They bear quicker after setting, and bear earlier in the season than any other fruit. Recently we mentioned the everbearing types for those who want summer and fall crops.

If you'd like an early non-everbearing, try Earldawn, a cross between Midland and a variety known as Tennessee Shipper. This is the earliest strawberry we've ever grown. The flavor is rather tart and some don't like it for that reason. The weak point is the berry's susceptibility to "summer wilt" disease.

Also, under poor growing conditions it does much more poorly than other berries. Midway is a fine midseason berry, producing giant sized plants and berries shiny red clear to the core.

A fine all-purpose berry. Midland is an early to midseason type, with large, deep glossy red berries. Weakness of Midland: Doesn't make plants freely and is susceptible to frost. Irrigation will correct these problems. More varieties next week.

A GOOD PRUNE—Stanley is one of the best prunes for the home planter. It bears in three years, doesn't need a nearby

"rooster" tree like some do. Fruit is deep blue or purple, ideal for freezing and canning.

CHINESE EVERGREEN—This fine foliage plant does well in water or soil, or even sand. It's practically pest-free, endures shade for long periods, but it does not like a low night temperature.

AGLAONEMA, or more commonly called Chinese Evergreen, has small calla-like blooms which usually do not come out unless the plants are completely pot-bound. Troubles: Drying of tips or edges is due to hot sun, dry soil or air too hot and dry.

You can start new plants from tip or stem cuttings rooted in water, sand or vermiculite.

CUT FLOWERS—Calling all men: The next time you walk by a flower shop, stop in and spend a dollar for a sprig of pompons or a few carnations for your wife. Take these home and arrange them in a small vase for her. Your stock will go up 100 per cent. At first she may be suspicious, or she may even want to smell your breath because it is quite shocking to a woman to live with a man for a quarter of a century and then suddenly be surprised with a bouquet.

She wants them now, Mister. And it only takes a dollar or two every now and then for posies to make her feel in the pink on a blue Monday.

TUBEROUS BEGONIAS—Some letters are coming in, telling us that tuberous begonias stored for the winter have started to sprout. What can be done to stop them? Sprouting means that their dormancy has been broken and they're ready to grow.

Warm cellars (above 55 degs.) hastens sprouting. If you can move the tubers to a cooler room sprouting will be delayed or even prevented. If you can't do this, then pot the tubers up in a humusy soil mixture and grow them in the coolest window you have.

Some hobbyists have by-passed the sprouting problem by breaking off the shoots as soon as they appear. I don't think this is a good idea as it may weaken the tuber.

MUM PLANTS—What's the best way to handle an indoor mum plant after it finishes blooming? Most of these varieties are too late to bloom again for you outdoors before frost hits them, but that shouldn't discourage you from saving the plant. After the blooms are shot, cut the stems back to 6 inches, keep it watered and then store in a bright cellar way or cellar. Or better still, keep it in a cold frame until spring rolls around.

They are hardy and will take the cold weather. In spring, water the plant to encourage new shoots to start from the base.

When these are 2 or 3 inches high, cut them off and root them in sand or water. Of you can divide the mother plant. Repeat the divisions and they'll make nice plants for you all fall. Those started from cuttings will be just as good, and this is a method we favor or divisions.

DWARF SHRUBS—If you're planning to landscape your home this spring, don't forget to keep in mind the size of the plants at maturity. If you don't you may find your planting grown to a jungle within a short span. Dwarf shrubs are needed in front of foundations and where windows are a problem.

Here are a few dwarf shrubs which might help you solve the problem.

Pink or White Deutzia, grows to height of 3 ft., with fragrant flowers. Pink Flowering Almond, a rounded bush 3 to 4 ft. and very dainty.

Chartreuse shrub (Ligustrum vicaria), with bright yellow foliage; 4 to 6 ft. in height. For a touch of blue, try the Blue Mist Shrub (Caryopteris); 2 feet tall, with exotic silvery green foliage.

The United States exported $3.1 billion in farm products in 1962.

R. R. of Cresco—"Last June we moved into our home and the first thing I did was to buy some climbing strawberry plants. They made beautiful growth, but produced only 5 berries. What can I do to make them bear so that we can at least make a strawberry shortcake?"

I'd wait until next summer to see what kind of a crop you'll get. It takes a good year for the vines to become established and bear. Many who have tried this novelty tell me it does not produce for them. I'd like to hear from readers who grow the climbing strawberry. If you have good luck, please tell me how you do it.

R. V. of Swiftwater—"I picked several small bags of seeds from zinnias, asters, marigolds and other annuals. These were removed before frost in fall. Would it be safe to plant these seeds for our outdoor beds, or won't they make good plants?"

Ice Cutter Looks For Cold Spell

By Peggy Bancroft
Daily Record Correspondent

GREENTOWN — Being a weatherman is a problem, because everybody wants a certain kind of weather for a special reason . . . and nobody agrees on exactly what's good!

Take, for instance, the weatherman who operates in the Poconos. Some folks — at ski resorts and ski areas — want a good supply of clean, fast, lasting snow. Motorists want the roads kept clear — it doesn't matter where else snow or sleet fall. The kids want sledding on the hills and enough snow to close the schools. Deer suffer when there's too much snow, and wells go dry if there's not enough to make up for last summer's dry weather — which is still a different problem.

And then, there's the ice cutter.

Ice cutting is practically a lost art in this modern-day world, when we push a button and out come ice cubes in ten different sizes and shapes. But in Greentown, near Lake Wallenpaupack, ice cutting is still being done — all reports to the contrary notwithstanding!

In Greentown

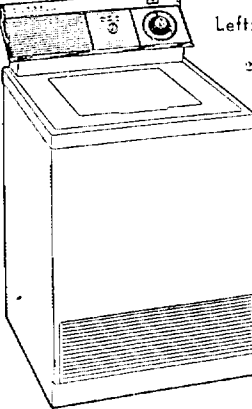

And the ice cutter in Greentown — one Max Hazelton — is keeping his eye on the weather and his order in for a 24-hour freeze — up before more snow falls.

If — and it's a big if! — it doesn't snow before it stops raining, then the ice will probably be ready for cutting by this weekend — a target date for Hazelton. But if, as it usually does in the Poconos in the winter, the rain turns to snow, then the excess moisture on top of the ice remains, and waterlogs the snow, and the ice collapses and there's nothing to cut!

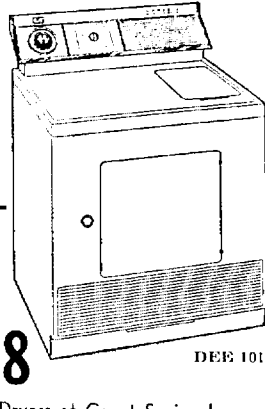

Last week's major snowfall was the first real worry this year, but Greentown's ice man scurried around and got his ice all cleaned off. Then rain came, come for ice each summer.

Plans Made For World Prayer Day

NEWFOUNDLAND — A discussion meeting to begin plans for the United World Day of Prayer in the Newfoundland area was held at the home of Mrs. Larry Lindemuth this week.

The three Methodist Churches, LaAnna, South Sterling and Hemlock Grove, and the Moravian Church, join in the observance, which this year will be held at the Moravian Church.

It was decided that an evening service might be more convenient for a greater number of residents, so the service has been set for 7:30 p.m. on Feb. 14, the first Friday in Lent.

Members of each church will participate in the service.

Presidential Economy Kick

WASHINGTON (AP) — Like many a householder before him, President Johnson feels the lights are left on too much around his place.

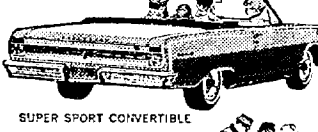

Delivering a little lecture Monday to Budget Bureau officials on the virtues of economy, Johnson told them to "ride herd" on unnecessary spending in all departments of government, including the White House.

CHEVELLE! by Chevrolet

One of the things you'll like best about it is 11 models to choose from.

MALIBU S.S. SERIES

These two Super Sport models are Chevelle's finest. Front bucket seats, door-to-door carpeting and an all-vinyl interior in seven colors. A wide choice of transmissions and extra-cost high-performance engines. Plus a whole host of other options.

SUPER SPORT COUPE

MALIBU SERIES

Chevelle's middle-of-the-line series, the Malibu, retains many features found in the two Super Sport models. Like all Chevelles, it's a good foot shorter than big cars, making it easy to park and handle. Yet inside it's surprisingly spacious and comfortable.
